

CAPRICORN PERSONALITY PROFILE

Capricorn is the tenth sign of the zodiac, and ruled by Saturn. Its symbol the goat and the key phrase: "I use" is Capricorn.

Capricorn is one of the most stable of the 12 zodiac signs. These independent, rocklike characters have many sterling qualities. Capricorn is the most serious of all the zodiac signs, dependable but also very cautious. Caution is their second name and this is due to Saturn, their ruling planet. They are sometimes shy and lacking in self confidence and self-esteem but are (usually) confident – or at least on the surface. They are self-disciplined, responsible and practical but at times can wallow in self-pity.

A typical Capricorn has good organizational skills and a hardheaded practicality but with a tendency to criticize themselves too much which can lead to low self-esteem. They can go through horrible mood swings, being friendly one moment and mean the next and appear rude and pessimistic which is not much fun at all.

They also have the strongest will in the zodiac. The only thing holding them back is themselves. Once they reconcile their emotional needs with their drive to succeed, nothing on Earth can stop them. In an argument there isn't a sign in the Universe that can better a Capricorn and they are proud of the fact that they are the most opinionated and self-centred sign of the zodiac. They may sound interesting people but in reality they are old-fashioned and tiresome.

A traditional life style appeals to Cappy's because they like things in their place and need to be in control. Because of this they are not always the most exciting person to be around but are extremely loyal and will never let anyone down once they've given them their word. (Capricorns marry for life and rarely divorce)

They make fair but stubborn leaders, are very well organized and can handle many projects at once. They are normally confident, strong willed and calm. There is no such thing as a Capricorn who doesn't like hard work and they work hard in order to achieve what they want in life. They are ambitious and strive for their dreams and usually end up successful. They like money but not if it involves risk.

A Capricorn may appear somber and reserved in their dealings with others, but once they give the trust, they are a loyal and steadfast friend. Socially oriented, their self-esteem is extremely important to them. They are bright and quick, good in detail as well as in insight and conceptual formulation.

They are materialistic rather than philosophical and whilst capable of falling in love for its own pleasure, love alone will not motivate them to marriage. To Capricorn marriage serves as a social design.

These hardworking, composed, responsible and cautious-to-the-extreme persons are capable of persisting for as long as it takes to accomplish any goals they have set for themselves. They are reliable workers and quickly become indispensable due to their strong work ethic, conventionality and great respect for authority. They are materialistic, ambitious and dedicated to duty but are, nevertheless, fair as well as demanding. They will often vie for a position of authority and once that control is gained, will be demanding and exacting although they are usually fair to people they deal with.

Among their equals they are not always the most pleasant of work fellows for they are reserved and too conservative, valuing tradition more than innovation, and are often humorless - their naturally pessimistic nature explains their wry sense of humor (which some think is no humor at all). There is this tendency to pessimism which many Capricorns are unable to keep to themselves, especially if they fail.

A capitalist Capricorn will coldly pretend he/she is in love with you, as long as you are useful to him/her in terms of social or business connections. This social climber doesn't want a partner, they want a lapdog who agrees with everything they say or do. A cruel Capricorn will place ambition ahead of personal relationships which can be jettisoned as needed.

In fact they disregard nearly every opinion except their own and consider most people as blathering fools for whom they have little or no time. The most you can expect after they've given you the condescending "once over" is a dismissive toss of the head as they give you the brush off and move on. They often have few close friends, and are indifferent and even callous to those outside their circle.

Capricorns are slow to anger only because they consider themselves so superior to the rest of humanity. They rarely lower themselves to conduct two-way conversations as they are both self-centered and wary (or even suspicious) of others and tend to be uncomfortable in personal interactions.

Capricorn is the sign of the business tycoon, gigolo, hermit, Pope, party pooper and assassins (if you want something done right, do it yourself).

They enjoy living in the best house in the best street, wearing one-off designer outfits, and spend their leisure time sipping rare wine whilst quietly conversing with friends on their imported Italian sofa.

Cappys need a positive environment to lift their spirits as they are often down (and not often up) and are quite capable of depressing everyone else around them.

Like a good wine, Capricorn is one of the signs that improve with age and for this reason tends to marry late (once they have achieved a lot of their goals and have become established). Their choice of partner will always be based on sound practical reasoning, with physical attributes low down on their list of priorities.

The best match for Capricorn is Scorpio. They are also compatible with Taurus, Virgo and Pisces who a pretty good match emotionally whilst Libra has a mate-for life resonance.

Scorpio

Capricorn and Scorpio is a match made in heaven. Their sexual chemistry is electric and will last for a life time and Scorpio stamina in the bedroom will match Capricorn's rapacious sexual appetite perfectly. Both are strong willed but both are homebodies and will lead a peaceful and uncomplicated life. Their emotional levels are in synch and they really "get" each other. In a nutshell, their relationship will be simple and fulfilling.

Virgo

As a fellow earth sign they will understand each other's practicality and perfectionism to a tee, and will work harmoniously with Capricorn to achieve it, especially in a business partnership.

This will result in a fulfilling and grounded relationship and you share an intense sexual attraction to each other (Capricorn's voracious sexual appetite is almost as intense as their greed for power). There is a danger of the relationship becoming dry though – all work and no play – and you both need to relax more and to pay more attention to your fun-loving, emotional side.

Capricorn can be stingy with their affections but generous with their criticism and Virgo will take in criticism very deeply. In turn they can project their own self-criticism outward, becoming nit-picky and critical of Capricorn and what is wrong with everything which Cappy will take as a personal attack and the relationship will start to unravel.

Libra

Libra's social finesse will appeal to Capricorn's as they will see this as an asset for climbing the ladder. Whilst Capricorn's "my way or the highway" sentiments will be abhorrent to Libra's diplomatic nature, a sense of balance and loyalty will keep these two together for better or for worse.

Libra will respond to Capricorn's genuine kindness and their wonderfully dry, witty sense of humour.
