

PISCES PERSONALITY PROFILE

Pisces is a Water sign, ruled by Neptune and is the last of the 12 signs of the zodiac. Known by its astrological symbol, the Fish they are gentle, spiritual and sensitive creatures who are very in touch with their emotions.

Key phrase: "I believe" is Pisces.

They do tend to live in a fantasy world of their own creation where they find a serene and safe refuge and are perfectly happy to exist in this cerebral place. All Pisceans possess vivid imaginations with minor paranoid tendencies and sometimes they even think they are being followed by the C.I.A, monitored by a covert work mole or even that their neighbors are spying on them.

They do not mind being regarded as somewhat muddled, as they prefer this fairy tale existence to the real thing and continue on a spiritual journey of their own creation. They constantly alternate between fantasy and reality which is the duality of this sign, the yin and the yang, hence the two fishes choosing to swim upstream or down.

Their symbol really mirrors how Pisceans are frequently torn between two pathways in life, or actually do live two very different existences at the same time and they can either be very successful or on the scrap heap (lots of Pisces are in prison!).

Pisceans are compassionate people and their commitment to easing the pain of others often draws them to less fortunate individuals who in turn can sadly take advantage of their kind and giving nature. They don't really have any great influence on their friends no matter how much they try and in turn people tend to resent them for strutting their successes.

They quickly put another's needs before their own, a type of self-sacrifice which keeps them going. The Piscean individual who is deeply in love may sacrifice themselves for their lover and because they care so deeply they can literally feel another's pain.

In personal relationships, the Piscean looks for a partner with whom they can connect with spiritually and physical attraction remains forever a minor consideration in their lives.

They do have an idealistic view of love and are forever in search of the perfect relationship; but as they lack confidence become classic chameleons and their mutable personalities make Pisces hard to pin down either as a friend or a life mate.

A Piscean is forever in search of the perfect relationship, which of course does not exist and will continue in a relationship long after others would have walked away.

They make great friends (for life) who are generous and kind hearted (with a true sense of kindness) and are very popular because of their likeable and easy going manner. Pisces are equally connected to their siblings and other close relatives who could rank amongst their best friends. They are highly intuitive and will sense if someone is in need and their empathy is legendary. They tend to run with the herd and their ideas and philosophies change with the fads of the day.

Pisces is amiable and charming with his co-workers and is the office diplomat. They will also do and say the right things and always be on hand to provide emotional and professional guidance with an open door policy.

As a Pisces boss their employees will be treated kindly and fairly and as a result are well liked and will create a loyal and family orientated office culture. They can become moody when stressed but generally they appear very laid back and relaxed. Because they osmore others moods they will require more time alone than other sign in order to recover and when this occurs, you will need to give them their solitude.

Gravitating towards careers in the civil service they make excellent advocates for the less fortunate and roles in which they can directly support and nurture such as welfare officers, police officers, doctors, nurses, equal opportunity commissioners - anything that tugs at the heart strings. They also make excellent sales and marketing people (people respond to them favorably) and in advertising because of their very creative streak (excellent imaginations) and they are exceptionally gifted artistically.

They tend to be happiest if they are involved in charity or volunteer work in their spare time and in their personal lives, they are inclined to take care of friends, relatives, animals and even strangers who come their way.

It has to be mentioned that Pisces is the most addictive sign of the zodiac as a result of their escapist fantasies and if things get too hard they can fall into acute addictions.

Whilst they are superb at caring for others, they don't have the same skill at sensing their own needs and caring for themselves both psychologically and/or physically.

If they are not addicted to hard drugs, alcohol or cigarettes a large proportion have to fight excessive weight problems. They really need a strong role model in their life to keep them grounded or they will very easily fall into a pit of self-pity and self-undoing as they are prone to extremes of emotions and feel both good and bad intensively.

Pisces are pretty much compatible with most signs as they usually will love what you want!

Virgo

Your zodiacal opposite is probably your best bet but it is important to find a Virgo who is in sync to your more soulful presence, and then you have someone who will pay the bills, and clean the house etc.

Cancer

As a fellow water sign will relate to your deep emotional nature, and provide you with the direction and support that you need.

Avoid Aries as they are far too aggressive and insensitive and will squash your soft nature, other than that it doesn't really matter who you'll pick because keep on working at it!
